Our Expert Who Fights Conflict

Larry Hogan,

Need assistance planning an upcoming project or getting past a stalled one? Contact Carly Levine

Carly is traveling across the State to meet engineers and staff, observe, and offer solutions.

Carly comes to her expertise through a background in athletics. For more than 20 years, Carly worked as a coach and organizer at various levels of college athletics. She held collegiate coaching positions at NCAA Division 1, 2, and 3 levels while organizing some of the largest and most diverse college events in the country. Carly’s experience in athletics taught her a thing or two about leadership, positive conflict resolution, and problem solving.

A common difficulty, she says, is when a meeting gets derailed because someone goes off topic. To her, it’s important to have tools and strategies to keep meetings focused. “For me, being a guide and helping teams plan and schedule meetings is where I can help. Whether you want to learn more about running effective meetings, collaborative problem solving, positive conflict resolution, or leadership principles, I’m your go-to.”

Carly’s passion for leadership and athletics transferred into her current role. Carly says that she learned a lot in her years of developing leaders and problem-solving strategies for her athletes. Her ability to help others think through a problem and find a solution is now being applied in her current role.

She can resolve conflict through collaborative problem solving, open and honest communication, and a willingness to listen. Carly has extensive experience working in a collaborative environment and knows that teamwork is key to resolving any issue.

Here’s her credo: “To me,” she says, “a team is a group of people coming together to achieve a common goal.”

Carly is excited to bring her expertise to the Office of Construction. She says she can’t wait to see how her background will translate to this new role. She is looking forward to working with others to ensure that the principles of teamwork are applied on construction projects and internally within the agency.

Just before the COVID budget freeze hit, in May, Carly joined the Office of Construction as a consultant. She is working with other project teams to ensure that meetings are running smoothly and that the projects are on track.

“A common concern I’ve found is that people aren’t prepared to meet,” she said. “I’m working with different teams to make sure everyone is ready and that we’re all on the same page.”

One of Carly’s main goals is to improve construction meeting coordination and cooperation. Team members have cross-functional understanding of the roles and responsibilities of each other. Carly is focused on ensuring that everyone is on the same page and that the projects are moving forward.

Carly is excited to bring her expertise in leadership and problem solving to this new role. She is looking forward to working with others to ensure that the projects are successful and that the teams are happy.

You can reach out to her if you need help.
